The commanding officer has also the gratification of informing the battalion that Col. Thomas, C.H., the inspecting officer, expressed his approval not only of the manner in which they passed the inspection, but of the smartness with which they executed their movements in brigade with the regular troops. The commanding officer takes this opportunity of reminding the battalion that they have gained this credit by their attendance at the week s encampment, and for any sacrifices they have made in so doing he is sure that every man will be compensated by the self-respect he must feel at having honestly discharged the duty which he undertook when he enrolled himself as a volunteer. The commanding officer begs to thank his brother officers for the cordial assistance they have rendered him throughout. His thanks are also due to Capt. Nicol, who acted as adjutant--in the place of Captain Crofts (absent on sick leave; and Captain Nicol will be gratified to know that the battalion appreciates the able manner in which his duties were discharged. The commanding officer need scarcely say that the Sergt.Major, by unremitting attention to his duties, contributed greatly to the efficiency and credit of the battalion. Further, the commanding officer desires, in the name of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, to express to Mr. Captain Nicol. 213 Wetherall (their Quartermaster) their lively appreciation of his zeal in his department. The comfort, health, and success of the...
